Ike And Adlai Make Plans For Their Last Minute Appeals To U. S. Voters

Stevenson Due For Final Talk Monday Night

Nationwide Radio-TV Address May Be Most Dramatic Of Campaign

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 3.—Optimism outweighed all the doubts in Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson's camp Monday as he carefully penned his last, and perhaps most dramatic, appeal to the voters before Tuesday's presidential election.

This speech will be delivered Monday night from Chicago in a national radio-television program featuring the Democratic candidate, President Truman, Vice President Barkley, and Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama, the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

Stevenson worked in his office at the executive mansion and even his own lieutenants said they didn't know what he was going to say. The candidate was due to leave here by plane late Monday for Chicago. He will spend the night there, cast his vote Tuesday in the little town of Half Day, Ill., and then return to Springfield.

Wilson Wyatt, Stevenson's campaign manager, predicted Monday night the Democratic nominee will win at least 400 electoral votes and carry at least 32 of the 48 states. It takes 266 electoral votes to elect.

STEVENSON gave another indication Sunday that he regards the Korean war as one of the major issues. He struck out at Eisenhower's proposals on Korea as carrying the risk of a third world war, designed to "separate us from our allies."

Eisenhower has said the South Koreans should be trained and should take over the combat duties from American troops. He also has pledged he would go to Korea if elected and seek a means of ending the war.

Of the Eisenhower proposals, Stevenson said:

"All of these have been designed to play upon the natural impatience of the American people with a military stalemate; designed to divide not to unite us; designed to separate us from our allies, not to increase our collective strength; and all with the effect of sapping, not building, the courage and resolution of the American people."

The Democratic candidate said: "What would have happened if we had failed to meet the Communist challenge in Korea? Men everywhere would have said that Americans talked big and acted small. We would have justified the criticism of Chinese Communists who call us a 'paper tiger.' We would have forfeited our role as leader of the free world—and there is no one else to lead it. And we should have forfeited our great prestige in the Orient."

"Southeast Asia would have fallen under Communist control. India surrounded by Communism and threatened with starvation, would have been hard to save."

HE SAID THE effect would have been felt, also, in the Middle East and by Japan.

"Our intervention in Korea," he argued, "there was a turning point in world history and in American history. And I have no doubt when we eventually restore world peace, as we shall, Korea, for all its cost in blood and treasure, will be seen as the preventive of much greater catastrophe."

"In short, we are in Korea because we must be there; and our purpose cannot be fully achieved by training South Korean troops to deal with the enemy alone."

Monday Torchlight Parade Climaxes Vote Drive Here

If Pickaway County does not register a new record vote in Tuesday's presidential election it will not be for lack of effort.

Working in unison, several organizations in Circleville and Pickaway County have contributed their time and efforts in one of the most comprehensive "get-out-the-vote" programs in history.

Final and expected largest program will be a "torchlight parade" through the streets of Circleville Monday evening.

The parade, featuring two musical units and marching candidates and party supporters, will form at 7 p. m. Monday at Pickaway Courthouse.

Monday's parade will move slowly, so that candidates may meet the people and the voters will have an opportunity to see their candidates.

MOVING FROM the Courthouse, the parade is to travel west on Franklin street to Scioto, Scioto to Main, Main to Pickaway, Pickaway to Franklin and back to the Courthouse.

Final feature of the parade program will be addresses by representatives of both parties, five-minute talks limited to explaining why eligible voters should go to the polls.

Selected to represent the Republicans in giving the talk for that party is William Ammer, candidate for the post of prosecuting attorney. Democrat representative has not yet been named.

Providing music for the parade will be Circleville's American Legion drum and bugle corps and the Circleville high school band. Expected to join parading candidates will be Pickaway County Boy Scouts, Circleville Jaycees and members of other organizations interested in having a huge vote here Tuesday.

Other programs set up to insure a huge turnout in the election were:

A "Liberty Bell" project by county Boy Scouts Saturday in contacting voters to ring the bell for liberty and vote.

PAINTING of "Vote Nov. 4" signs on Circleville's downtown sidewalks as reminders to voters by the Jaycees;

Free transportation to the polls for those unable to get there otherwise by Circleville auto dealers. All of the dealers contacted early Monday indicated they were more than willing to provide free rides;

In Ashville, voters of that community are offered free transportation and baby-sitting services.

As a final part of the "get-out-the-vote" program, Circleville and Pickaway are expected to participate in a "lights on—votes out" project Monday night.

Throughout the nation, voters planning to visit the polls Tuesday are asked to turn on their porch-lights to signify their intentions, show their pride in being positive they will exercise their voting right.

Eisenhower has gone on record with the belief that South Korean soldiers can be trained in sufficient numbers to permit American divisions to be withdrawn to rear areas, and held in reserve. He says he would push such a program if he is elected.

Implementing this, the general promised to go to Korea himself, if he becomes President, to study the problem at first hand.

At the same time, he has fired some of his heaviest broadsides at President Truman's government, charging it with responsibility for conditions that permitted the Korean fighting to start, and with having failed to build a South Korean army capable of taking over its front lines in the 29 months since the war started.

AT THE 11TH hour, Truman joined the fray on this same critical point. He declassified a Department of Defense document of September, 1947. Signed by the late Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, it quoted a report from the Joint Chiefs of Staff and said they considered that from the standpoint of military security, the U. S. had "little interest" in maintaining its troops and bases in Korea.

Eisenhower was Army chief of staff at the time and the President has claimed that he bears part of the responsibility for the decision to pull American forces off the peninsula.

Eisenhower's answer has been that the political decision to withdraw came two years after the report of the Joint Chiefs, namely in 1949.

In returning to New England, Eisenhower is completing a circle. Nearly eight months ago, while he was still in Europe, his backers entered him in the nation's first primary election in New Hampshire, March 11. He won it, defeating his great rival, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

Since then, he has criss-crossed the country, covering well over 50,000 miles. He delivered in the neighborhood of 300 speeches. The climax of that long and increasingly bitter struggle comes in Boston Monday night.

EISENHOWER prepared to motorcade through the neck of the city during the day. At 10 p. m. (EST) he will make his last major address in a rally in the Boston Garden Auditorium. The speech will be televised and broadcast by radio, NBC and ABC.

At 11 p. m. he takes part in an hour-long TV and radio presentation; NBC, ABC, CBS and Dumont television; NBC, ABC, CBS and MBS radio.

His managers said the programs would cost $250,000.

He will leave for New York after the presentations, spending election day in his residence at Columbia University and election night at his headquarters in the Commodore Hotel. His running mate, Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California, planned to join him in Boston Monday.

RESTRAINED BY POLICEMEN, Thomas Breen, 18, screams between sobs, "I'll kill 'em," after being routed from a Philadelphia cellar by tear gas. The youth fired more than a dozen wild shots at eight members of his family and police and then barricaded himself in his hideout for three hours. No one was injured. Police blamed the outburst on drinking and a quarrel with his father.

Average Circleville Voters Say Presidential Race Looks Close

It was a frequent occurrence for Circleville residents to meet on the street Monday and ask simultaneously:

"How do you think the election's going to come out?"

Then they'd laugh.

It was a good illustration of the community's uncertainty, not only in reference to the nation's presidential race but also on a number of the lesser contests.

Only leading spokesmen for the two major parties claimed confidence—all, of course, toward their own candidates.

RAY DAVIS, chairman of the Pickaway County Republican executive committee, said:

"The election looks very good for the Republicans, and I don't think it's going to be as close as a lot of people think."

"I think the bulk of the independent voters are just waiting to vote for the GOP. There are increasing signs of strong support from the women, too."

"I don't think the recent statements of Sen. (Joseph R.) McCarthy have had much effect one way or the other on the Republican presidential prospects. Personally I don't approve of some of McCarthy's methods, but it's certainly true that he has uncovered some things that needed uncovering."

"As for McCarthy's big vote in Wisconsin, I feel the tremendous size of that vote was an expression of resentment—in other words I think the voters wanted to protest outside interference in their state election."

Although he declined to comment on McCarthy's influence on the final presidential results, Karl Herrmann, chairman of the county's Democratic executive committee, was also confident. He said:

"INsofar as Ohio is concerned, I feel Gov. Frank J. Lausche will carry the state by a good majority."

"On the national ticket, it may be a close vote but I'm sure Adlai Stevenson will have the edge. As far as the Bricker-DiSalle fight goes, of course, that's anybody's guess."

"In Pickaway County we naturally hope to elect a full slate of Democrats."

The average man and woman around town, however, indicated they couldn't see much in the way of clear-cut prospects.

Typical remarks along Court and Main, in stores and homes were as follows:

"I think it's going to be awfully close. I can't see much of a margin for either Eisenhower or Stevenson. It's just too close to figure in advance."

"Sure, I think it's going to be close too, but I still feel the Republicans have the wrong man running."

Eisenhower Due To Talk Monday Night

$250,000 Radio-TV Program To Give Last Plea By General, GOP

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower comes to the end of the campaign trail Monday night, making his last great bid for the most powerful elective office in the world, the presidency of the United States.

He chose Boston, a city rich in the traditions of early America, as the site for his final effort.

The approach of zero-hour found the Korean war, and the problem of war and survival generally, as the top issue of the campaign.

Eisenhower has gone on record with the belief that South Korean soldiers can be trained in sufficient numbers to permit American divisions to be withdrawn to rear areas, and held in reserve. He says he would push such a program if he is elected.

Implementing this, the general promised to go to Korea himself, if he becomes President, to study the problem at first hand.

At the same time, he has fired some of his heaviest broadsides at President Truman's government, charging it with responsibility for conditions that permitted the Korean fighting to start, and with having failed to build a South Korean army capable of taking over its front lines in the 29 months since the war started.

AT THE 11TH hour, Truman joined the fray on this same critical point. He declassified a Department of Defense document of September, 1947. Signed by the late Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, it quoted a report from the Joint Chiefs of Staff and said they considered that from the standpoint of military security, the U. S. had "little interest" in maintaining its troops and bases in Korea.

Eisenhower was Army chief of staff at the time and the President has claimed that he bears part of the responsibility for the decision to pull American forces off the peninsula.

Eisenhower's answer has been that the political decision to withdraw came two years after the report of the Joint Chiefs, namely in 1949.

In returning to New England, Eisenhower is completing a circle. Nearly eight months ago, while he was still in Europe, his backers entered him in the nation's first primary election in New Hampshire, March 11. He won it, defeating his great rival, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

Records of manager-operated cities show marked improvement in health, recreation, street, parking, garbage disposal, street cleaning, police, fire, utilities, crime prevention and other services.

Highly-placed leaders in Portsmouth's court and school system say the charter, though admittedly far from perfect, is vastly superior to the arrangement Circleville has now. To discard the charter would set Portsmouth back 25 years or more.

Washington C.H. doesn't use the form of charter proposed here, and anyway has made basic errors in its efforts to make the plan work.

Westerville lists great savings and extensive improvements in its services under the charter. It has services far advanced over those in use here.

"LET'S GIVE IT A TRY!" There's no assurance the charter would be an improvement, or even as good as what we've got. Also, it wouldn't be nearly as easy to discard as a lot of people think.

The charter couldn't be worse than what we've got, and if the people don't want it they can junk the plan through referendum. The only proof of the pudding is to give the idea a chance. Any good plan deserves a fair trial.

Arguments Boil As City Charter Nears Decision At Local Polls

Controversy that originated more than a year ago here stood at new high levels Monday as Circleville voters prepared for the big decision on the city charter issue.

Opposing forces in the debate over merits of the council-manager plan of government, proposed for Circleville and up for a vote at Tuesday's election, have carried their arguments into activities on the eve of balloting.

The Herald in this issue presents what seems to be the opposing positions on some the points argued. The interpretation in no way claims to be official for either side, but seeks only to condense the rival claims on the specific phases under debate.

For condensation purposes, the views here are given in the form of statements by hypothetical spokesmen. Based upon both verbal and printed statements made for and against the proposed charter, the review is offered as follows:

FOR

WE can't figure our costs with any degree of accuracy that would serve for discussion, since no plan of this sort can have its financial factors weighed in advance. The charter would not cost more than the present setup. It very likely would cost far less.

ELIMINATION OF PRIMARY

By electing councilmen-at-large only, the charter will end ward politics and give council the best qualified men in the city. Lopsided representation under the charter isn't any more of a threat than it is under the present mayor-council arrangement.

THREAT OF INCOME TAX

A city income tax isn't any more likely under the charter than it is now. A healthier municipal financial condition under the charter would make this threat even more remote. Such talk of taxes is used to blind the average voter.

MUNICIPAL COURT

The charter itself does not provide a municipal court. However, since such a court apparently would go far toward easing the city's financial problems, we emphasize that the court could be established by legislative action and go into effect with the charter plan. Chillicothe's municipal court in its first year netted $30,000.

"LOSING YOUR VOTE"

Deliberate falsehoods have been circulated on this point and others. The control of the voters remains intact through council which serves as the responsible link between the top man's system and the taxpayers. On the average, appointed men are better administrators than elected men.

TURNOVER IN MANAGERS

The turnover in city managers only illustrates how easily a city can fire a man who doesn't get results, and how many communities don't hesitate to do it.

OTHER CITIES

Approximately 1,500 cities use the city manager plan now, an increase of 1,059 cities since 1930. The trend is rapidly growing.

BETTER SERVICES

Records of manager-operated cities show marked improvement in health, recreation, street, parking, garbage disposal, street cleaning, police, fire, utilities, crime prevention and other services.

PORTSMOUTH

Facts and figures given by a city official at Portsmouth and others show that the charter has brought many headaches to that city. The average citizen in Portsmouth would like to discard the plan. It forced that city into an expensive municipal court.

WASHINGTON C.H.

A city charter government, aside from small details here and there, is a city charter government. And Washington C.H. has tremendous financial problems.

WESTERVILLE

Westerville has had the charter for an awfully long time and too little is known of the plan's history in that community. Many of its claims are doubted here.

"LET'S GIVE IT A TRY!"

There's no assurance the charter would be an improvement, or even as good as what we've got. Also, it wouldn't be nearly as easy to discard as a lot of people think.

AGAINST

WE fully realize that accurate figures on costs can't be given in advance, but we feel the charter group at least should give a full list of estimates for comparison purposes. Where are they going to get all the additional money?

ELIMINATION OF PRIMARY

Portsmouth discovered it couldn't end ward politics by eliminating the primary. The wide open arrangement proposed under the charter would encourage lopsided representation and would permit election of men with relatively low vote totals.

THREAT OF INCOME TAX

If, in attempting to establish this plan (which has never been tried here) the estimates would prove far short of needs, something similar to an income tax would be necessary to pull the city out of its financial tailspin.

MUNICIPAL COURT

In the early stages of discussion a lot of people were fooled into backing the charter because they thought it included a municipal court. Portsmouth proves that such a court, though admittedly giving the city more money, would only pile costs atop the charter costs in the final totals.

"LOSING YOUR VOTE"

The charter deprives a man of the "right to vote" because it allows him to vote only for councilmen. This is not sufficient to maintain an effective control by the voters. Taxpayers would have great difficulty changing the top command if council wouldn't want to change it.

TURNOVER IN MANAGERS

Frequent reports of city managers losing their jobs in other communities under the charter are indications of the difficulties those cities have. It should be a warning to Circleville.

OTHER CITIES

Even 1,500 cities is a relatively trivial percentage of the nation's communities, and what may be good for one city could be suicide for another.

BETTER SERVICES

While it's true many improvements of this type have been claimed by some of the cities using a city manager, the pro-charter forces have yet to show us to any reasonable degree how they'll make those improvements here.

PORTSMOUTH

Facts and figures given by a city official at Portsmouth and others show that the charter has brought many headaches to that city. The average citizen in Portsmouth would like to discard the plan. It forced that city into an expensive municipal court.

WASHINGTON C.H.

A city charter government, aside from small details here and there, is a city charter government. And Washington C.H. has tremendous financial problems.

WESTERVILLE

Westerville has had the charter for an awfully long time and too little is known of the plan's history in that community. Many of its claims are doubted here.

"LET'S GIVE IT A TRY!"

There's no assurance the charter would be an improvement, or even as good as what we've got. Also, it wouldn't be nearly as easy to discard as a lot of people think.

State Patrol Kills Con In New Rioting

3 Other Inmates Hurt As Rebellion Boils In Prison's Main Cellblock

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3.—(AP)—State highway patrolmen shot and killed one of 1,600 rioting convicts in Ohio Penitentiary Monday and a few minutes later a National Guard Company armed with rifles and machineguns marched inside the walls.

About 100 guardsmen in full field equipment entered the southwest truck gate to reinforce 21 state patrolmen who had been holding the convicts at bay with a criss-cross shotgun barrage down the corridors of four battered cell blocks.

The Guard company was not immediately identified.

The guardsmen carried M-1s with fixed bayonets, automatic Browning rifles, 30-caliber machineguns with tripod mounts and machine pistols.

It was the first time the guardsmen, who had been standing by outside the prison since Friday night, actually entered the penitentiary.

Warden Ralph Alvis said the state patrol and the Guard have taken over control of the four cellblocks where the convicts are with prison guards relieved of the leadership in the fight to regain discipline.

The guardsmen are arrayed in the prison courtyard. The highway patrolmen are inside the cellblocks, firing sporadically to keep the convicts away from them.

NINE MORE guardsmen armed with machineguns entered the prison, bringing to 126 the number now inside the walls.

Inside the pested cellblocks conditions degenerated under the autumn cold. Heat in the battered cellblocks was turned off Sunday night. The convicts have received no food since Sunday evening.

The State Highway Patrol is charged with protecting state property, although the patrolmen ordinarily are not armed.

Local Guards Still On Duty At Ohio Pen

Circleville's Co. I, 166th Infantry National Guard unit remained on duty Monday in the riot-torn Ohio Penitentiary.

The local Guardsmen, commanded by John McGinnis, were alerted to active duty last Friday to serve at the penitentiary.

At present the company, consisting of 45 enlisted men and McGinnis, is standing guard in the prison at six-hour intervals, staying between duties in Ft. Hayes.

The local company has machine guns set up in the prison yards and the Guardsmen are equipped with M-1 rifles and bayonets as precautionary measures.

SERVING with the Circleville Guards are units from Washington C.H. and a group of the First Battalion.

Commander McGinnis Monday commended the local unit for doing a good job at the pen.

He added, however, the only friction was in several men who are worrying whether they will have a job left when they return from duty.

McGinnis said some of the men have definite fears they may be fired when they return to Circleville for having missed working days.

A move was made by the company Monday to determine whether some method might be arranged so they could vote Tuesday in the capital.

A call to the attorney general's office and from there to the governor's office resulted in the decision that if the men of Co. I wish to vote they must come back to their own precincts during their off-duty time.

Members of the Guard unit Monday had no indication how long they must remain on duty in the capital, but believed they will have to be available at least until after election day.

Ike And Adlai Make Plans For Their Last Minute Appeals To U. S. Voters

Stevenson Due For Final Talk Monday Night

Nationwide Radio-TV Address May Be Most Dramatic Of Campaign

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 3.—Optimism outweighed all the doubts in Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson's camp Monday as he carefully penned his last, and perhaps most dramatic, appeal to the voters before Tuesday's presidential election.

This speech will be delivered Monday night from Chicago in a national radio-television program featuring the Democratic candidate, President Truman, Vice President Barkley, and Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama, the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

Stevenson worked in his office at the executive mansion and even his own lieutenants said they didn't know what he was going to say. The candidate was due to leave here by plane late Monday for Chicago. He will spend the night there, cast his vote Tuesday in the little town of Half Day, Ill., and then return to Springfield.

Wilson Wyatt, Stevenson's campaign manager, predicted Monday night the Democratic nominee will win at least 400 electoral votes and carry at least 32 of the 48 states. It takes 266 electoral votes to elect.

STEVENS ON gave another indication Sunday that he regards the Korean war as one of the major issues. He struck out at Eisenhower's proposals on Korea as carrying the risk of a third world war, designed to "separate us from our allies."

Ohio Wounded To Come Here In Emergency

Dr. Ray Carroll, director of the medical branch of Pickaway County's civil defense organization, warned Monday the district might be called upon to care for nearly 2,000 wounded in event of a war emergency.

Dr. Carroll recently attended a meeting of civil defense medical officers in Columbus.

"The role of Circleville in event of emergency," he said, "was explained to be that of an evacuation point. And we're located in an evacuation region which has two target areas—Columbus and Lancaster."

"Ohio has about 19 target areas—more than any other state. Evacuation areas extend for a radius of 50 miles from each of the vital sections."

"IN EVENT of a war emergency—it may never come, or it could come tonight—Pickaway County would be called upon to care for 1,925 wounded. Local agencies would also be expected to furnish the transportation needed to get the casualties to the various emergency hospitals."

"School houses in the county would probably all be used as emergency hospitals, especially any that don't have to depend too much upon gas or electricity."

In addition to Ohio's important place in the civilian defense picture with 19 target areas, Dr. Carroll called attention to "the geographical layout which would make it reachable by bombers flying over the polar region."

Cincy Hospital Escapee Nabbed

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 3.—One of five escapees from Longview State Hospital in Cincinnati was recaptured here Sunday night.

The five fled from the hospital last Friday after overpowering a guard by threatening him with a butcher knife. Taken into custody on a Middletown street was Robert Lacy, 16.

dates will be Pickaway County Boy Scouts, Circleville Jaycees and members of other organizations interested in having a huge vote here Tuesday.

Other programs set up to insure a huge turnout in the election were:

At 11 p. m. he takes part in an hour-long TV and radio presentation; NBC, ABC, CBS and Dumont television; NBC, ABC, CBS and MBS radio.

His managers said the programs would cost $250,000. He will leave for New York after the presentations, spending election day in his residence at Columbia University and election night at his headquarters in the Commodore Hotel. His running mate, Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California, planned to join him in Boston Monday.

Typical remarks along Court and Main, in stores and homes were as follows:

"I think it's going to be awfully close. I can't see much of a margin for either Eisenhower or Stevenson. It's just too close to figure in advance."

"Sure, I think it's going to be close too, but I still feel the Republicans have the wrong man running."

RESTRAINED BY POLICEMEN, Thomas Breen, 18, screams between sobs, "I'll kill 'em," after being routed from a Philadelphia cellar by tear gas. The youth fired more than a dozen wild shots at eight members of his family and police and then barricaded himself in his hideout for three hours. No one was injured. Police blamed the outburst on drinking and a quarrel with his father.

Average Circleville Voters Say Presidential Race Looks Close

It was a frequent occurrence for Circleville residents to meet on the street Monday and ask simultaneously:

"How do you think the election's going to come out?"

Then they'd laugh.

It was a good illustration of the community's uncertainty, not only in reference to the nation's presidential race but also on a number of the lesser contests.

Only leading spokesmen for the two major parties claimed confidence—all, of course, toward their own candidates.

RAY DAVIS, chairman of the Pickaway County Republican executive committee, said:

"The election looks very good for the Republicans, and I don't think it's going to be as close as a lot of people think."

"I think the bulk of the independent voters are just waiting to vote for the GOP. There are increasing signs of strong support from the women, too."

"I don't think the recent statements of Sen. (Joseph R.) McCarthy have had much effect one way or the other on the Republican presidential prospects. Personally I don't approve of some of McCarthy's methods, but it's certainly true that he has uncovered some things that needed uncovering."

"As for McCarthy's big vote in Wisconsin, I feel the tremendous size of that vote was an expression of the dealers contacted early Monday indicated they were more than willing to provide free rides;

In Ashville, voters of that community are offered free transportation and baby-sitting services.

As a final part of the "get-out-the-vote" program, Circleville and Pickaway are expected to participate in a "lights on—votes out" project Monday night.

Throughout the nation, voters planning to visit the polls Tuesday are asked to turn on their porch-lights to signify their intentions, show their pride in being positive they will exercise their voting right.

Eisenhower has gone on record with the belief that South Korean soldiers can be trained in sufficient numbers to permit American divisions to be withdrawn to rear areas, and held in reserve. He says he would push such a program if he is elected.

Implementing this, the general promised to go to Korea himself, if he becomes President, to study the problem at first hand.

At the same time, he has fired some of his heaviest broadsides at President Truman's government, charging it with responsibility for conditions that permitted the Korean fighting to start, and with having failed to build a South Korean army capable of taking over its front lines in the 29 months since the war started.

AT THE 11TH hour, Truman joined the fray on this same critical point. He declassified a Department of Defense document of September, 1947. Signed by the late Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, it quoted a report from the Joint Chiefs of Staff and said they considered that from the standpoint of military security, the U. S. had "little interest" in maintaining its troops and bases in Korea.

Eisenhower was Army chief of staff at the time and the President has claimed that he bears part of the responsibility for the decision to pull American forces off the peninsula.

Eisenhower's answer has been that the political decision to withdraw came two years after the report of the Joint Chiefs, namely in 1949.

In returning to New England, Eisenhower is completing a circle. Nearly eight months ago, while he was still in Europe, his backers entered him in the nation's first primary election in New Hampshire, March 11. He won it, defeating his great rival, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

Since then, he has criss-crossed the country, covering well over 50,000 miles. He delivered in the neighborhood of 300 speeches.

The climax of that long and increasingly bitter struggle comes in Boston Monday night.

EISENHOWER prepared to motorcade through the necklace of cities ringing Boston during the day. At 10 p. m. (EST) he will make his last major address in a rally in the Boston Garden Auditorium. The speech will be televised and broadcast by radio, NBC and ABC.

At 11 p. m. he takes part in an hour-long TV and radio presentation; NBC, ABC, CBS and Dumont television; NBC, ABC, CBS and MBS radio.

His managers said the programs would cost $250,000. Arguments Boil As City Charter Nears Decision At Local Polls

Controversy that originated more than a year ago here stood at new high levels Monday as Circleville voters prepared for the big decision on the city charter issue.

Opposing forces in the debate over merits of the council-manager plan of government, proposed for Circleville and up for a vote at Tuesday's election, have carried their arguments into activities on the eve of balloting.

The Herald in this issue presents what seems to be the opposing positions on some the points argued. The interpretation in no way claims to be official for either side, but seeks only to condense the rival claims on the specific phases under debate.

For condensation purposes, the views here are given in the form of statements by hypothetical spokesmen. Based upon both verbal and printed statements made for and against the proposed charter, the review is offered as follows:

FOR

WE can't figure our costs with any degree of accuracy that would serve for discussion, since no plan of this sort can have its financial factors weighed in advance. The charter would not cost more than the present setup. It very likely would cost far less.

By electing councilmen-at-large only, the charter will end ward politics and give council the best qualified men in the city. Lopsided representation under the charter isn't any more of a threat than it is under the present mayor-council arrangement.

A city income tax isn't any more likely under the charter than it is now. A healthier municipal financial condition under the charter would make this threat even more remote. Such talk of taxes is used to blind the average voter.

ELIMINATION OF PRIMARY

Portsmouth discovered it couldn't end ward politics by eliminating the primary. The wide open arrangement proposed under the charter would encourage lopsided representation and would permit election of men with relatively low vote totals.

THREAT OF INCOME TAX

If, in attempting to establish this plan (which has never been tried here) the estimates would prove far short of needs, something similar to an income tax would be necessary to pull the city out of its financial tailspin.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

In the early stages of discussion a lot of people were fooled into backing the charter because they thought it included a municipal court. Portsmouth proves that such a court, though admittedly giving the city more money, would only pile costs atop the charter costs in the final totals.

"LOSING YOUR VOTE"

The charter deprives a man of the "right to vote" because it allows him to vote only for councilmen. This is not sufficient to maintain an effective control by the voters. Taxpayers would have great difficulty changing the top command if council wouldn't want to change it.

TURNOVER IN MANAGERS

Frequent reports of city managers losing their jobs in other communities under the charter are indications of the difficulties those cities have. It should be a warning to Circleville.

OTHER CITIES

Even 1,500 cities is a relatively trivial percentage of the nation's communities, and what may be good for one city could be suicide for another.

BETTER SERVICES

While it's true many improvements of this type have been claimed by some of the cities using a city manager, the pro-charter forces have yet to show us to any reasonable degree how they'll make those improvements here.

PORTSMOUTH

Facts and figures given by a city official at Portsmouth and others show that the charter has brought many headaches to that city. The average citizen in Portsmouth would like to discard the plan. It forced that city into an expensive municipal court.

WASHINGTON C.H.

A city charter government, aside from small details here and there, is a city charter government. And Washington C.H. has tremendous financial problems.

WESTERVILLE

Westerville has had the charter for an awfully long time and too little is known of the plan's history in that community. Many of its claims are doubted here.

"LET'S GIVE IT A TRY!"

There's no assurance the charter would be an improvement, or even as good as what we've got. Also, it wouldn't be nearly as easy to discard as a lot of people think.

MAGICIAN DIES

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 3.—(P)—William Franklin Myers, 67, known professionally as Lamar the Magician, died Sunday in his home here.

State Patrol Kills Con In New Rioting

About 100 guardsmen in full field equipment entered the southwest truck gate to reinforce 21 state patrolmen who had been holding the convicts at bay with a criss-cross shotgun barrage down the corridors of four battered cell blocks.

The Guard company was not immediately identified.

The guardsmen carried M-1s with fixed bayonets, automatic Browning rifles, 30-caliber machineguns with tripod mounts and machine pistols.

It was the first time the guardsmen, who had been standing by outside the prison since Friday night, actually entered the penitentiary.

Warden Ralph Alvis said the state patrol and the Guard have taken over control of the four cellblocks where the convicts are with prison guards relieved of the leadership in the fight to regain discipline.

The guardsmen are arrayed in the prison courtyard. The highway patrolmen are inside the cellblocks, firing sporadically to keep the convicts away from them.

NINE MORE guardsmen armed with machineguns entered the prison, bringing to 126 the number now inside the walls.

Inside the besieged cellblocks conditions degenerated under the autumn cold. Heat in the battered cellblocks was turned off Sunday night. The convicts have received no food since Sunday evening.

The State Highway Patrol is charged with protecting state property, although the patrolmen ordinarily are not in the pen.

Local Guards Still On Duty At Ohio Pen

Circleville's Co. I, 166th Infantry National Guard unit remained on duty Monday in the riot-torn Ohio Penitentiary.

The local Guardsmen, commanded by John McGinnis, were alerted to active duty last Friday to serve at the penitentiary.

At present the company, consisting of 45 enlisted men and McGinnis, is standing guard in the prison at six-hour intervals, staying between duties in Ft. Hayes.

The local company has machine guns set up in the prison yards and the Guardsmen are equipped with M-1 rifles and bayonets as precautionary measures.

SERVING with the Circleville Guards are units from Washington C.H. and a group of the First Battalion.

Commander McGinnis Monday commended the local unit for doing a good job at the pen.

He added, however, the only friction was in several men who are worrying whether they will have a job left when they return from duty.

McGinnis said some of the men have definite fears they may be fired when they return to Circleville for having missed working days.

A move was made by the company Monday to determine whether some method might be arranged so they could vote Tuesday in the capital.

A call to the attorney general's office and from there to the governor's office resulted in the decision that if the men of Co. I wish to vote they must come back to their own precincts during their off-duty time.

Members of the Guard unit Monday had no indication how long they must remain on duty in the capital, but believed they will have to be available at least until after election day.

Fire Destroys Float Shown By Lutherans

One of the floats which brought an extra share of applause in the Pumpkin Show parades has gone up in a burst of flame.

The float prepared by Trinity Lutheran church was destroyed by fire at 4:50 p. m. Sunday while parked behind the parish house, preparatory to dismantling. Cause of the fire was not definitely known.

Otherwise Circleville fire department confined its efforts to battling grass fires over the weekend.

At 11:55 a. m. Saturday, the township truck checked a grass fire in the Cedar Heights area.

AT 7:55 P. M. Saturday, a grass fire was extinguished along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near Ohio street. And about an hour later, another grass fire was stopped after burning over a small area near the station.

A grass fire was extinguished at about 5:32 p. m. Sunday along the Old Canal in Wayne Township.

No serious loss was reported for any of the weekend blazes.

New Sewing Machine Shop Offers Contest

Sailor and Hadd sewing machine shop of 323 East Main street announced Clarence Radcliffe has been named to judge entries in a Domestic Sewing Machine Contest beginning Monday.

Open to the residents of Circleville and readers of The Circleville Herald, Sailor and Hadd's contest will give every member of the family a chance at winning a beautiful new Domestic Rotary Sewing Machine with period mahogany cabinet.

The contest requires no special knowledge or skill. There are no long essays to write. Besides the grand prize of the new Domestic Sewing Machine, many valuable merchandise certificates will be awarded.

Complete details on this contest appear on page 3 in this issue of The Herald.

City Permit Issued For $10,000 Home

A building permit to George C. Barnes of 113½ South Court street for construction of a $10,000 residence was among the latest issued by the city zoning and planning commission.

The frame dwelling will be built on Sunshine street.

Permits were also issued to Mrs. Lucy Groom of 561 East Main street for parking of a trailer at her address, at a fee of $25, and to Gilbert Starkey of North Court and York streets for construction of a $2,800 cottage at that location.

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Grains moved ahead for fractional gains on the Board of Trade Monday.

Dealings were quite active at the start when wheat took over market leadership and jumped more than a cent. Later, the activity quieted down.

Corn had some difficulty in getting started on the upswing, largely because of large cash receipts, but managed to advance around mid-session. July soybeans were firm on short-covering.

Wheat at noon was 3/8-3/4 higher, December $2.37 3/4, corn 1/8-1/4 higher, December $1.66, oats 1/8-1/4 higher, December 86 1/2, soybeans 1/2 lower to 2 cents higher, November $2.97, and lard 5 cents lower to 3 cents a hundred pounds higher, November $8.37.

All Major Ohio Candidates But Lausche Press Campaign

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3.—Except for Gov. Frank J. Lausche, top candidates in Ohio's 1952 election went right down to the wire Monday in their speech-making quest for votes.

On the Republican side, Charles P. Taft, candidate for governor, was down for appearances in Stark County and Canton before hurrying back to Cincinnati to vote. U. S. Sen. John W. Bricker, seeking reelection, has two speeches in Youngstown Monday night.

Governor Lausche, the Democrat nominee for reelection, was in Cleveland but had no formal meetings planned. He was keeping an eye on the prisoner revolt in the Ohio Penitentiary. Michael V. DiSalle, candidate for senator, had a full day of meetings planned in Cleveland as well as a 6:15 p. m. television appearance which will be carried on stations in Cleveland, Dayton, Columbus and Cincinnati.

The Republicans had most of the activity Sunday.

GOP STATE candidates and their families and U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft, who has been stumping the country in behalf of the presidential candidacy of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, participated in a "family night" television program from Cincinnati. The hour-long program also was telecast through five stations.

Senator Taft reiterated his belief that there will be a Republican victory at the polls.

"With Gen. Eisenhower as President," Taft said, "we can make progress, for he is against excessive power and New Deal, Fair Deal Socialism which have made other countries bankrupt."

He again stressed the need for the election of a Republican Congress, declaring, "it would be a serious handicap if Gen. Eisenhower is confronted with a hostile Congress."

Safety of the United States and liberty of its citizens in the face of threats of Communism were listed by Bricker as the supreme issue in the campaign. He urged voters: "Ask yourself this one vital question: Am I voting to protect the country?"

Mr. Fox was Sunday school superintendent of Whisler Presbyterian church for many years and also served as an elder in the church.

He was born Aug. 27, 1878, son of Jesse and Adaline Wilkins Fox. He is survived by his widow, Josephine Fox; three daughters, Mrs. Claude Crawford of Kingston Route 1, Mrs. Carroll Miner of Kingston Route 2, and Mrs. Clarence Maxson of Laurelville Route 1; three sons, Lawrence H. Fox and Ralph E. Fox, both of Columbus, and Elton J. Fox of Groveport; two sisters, Mrs. Frank Hartranft of Illinois and Mrs. Otis Overly of Vinton County; a brother, Albert Fox, of Hallsville; 20 grandchildren and 13 great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday in Whisler Presbyterian church with the Rev. Wayne Wardwell officiating. Burial will be in Whisler cemetery by direction of L. E. Hill Funeral Home, Kingston.

Friends may call in the residence in Whisler.

MRS. EYMAN WOLFE

Mrs. Hazel Wolfe, 49, widow of Eyman Wolfe, died at 8:15 a. m. Saturday in Chillicothe.

Mrs. Wolfe was born December 13, 1902, near Circleville, daughter of Emanuel and Anna Klingensmith Young.

Survivors are two sons, Virgil of Chillicothe and Robert of Columbus; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Waits of 13 North Hickory street, Chillicothe, where Mrs. Wolfe died; two grandchildren; three brothers, Roy, Howard and Mason Young, all of Circleville; and two sisters, Mrs. Hildeburn Martin of Circleville and Mrs. Edith Anderson of Lancaster.

She was a member of Trinity Lutheran church.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in Defenbaugh Funeral Home with the Rev. George Troutman officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery.

Friends may call in the funeral home.

MISS ADAH MACHAIR

Miss Adah Machair, 73, died at 8:40 p. m. Saturday in Circleville Home and Hospital.

Miss Machair was born Nov. 5, 1878, in Kingston, daughter of Edward and Jane May Machair.

She is survived by two nephews, Kenneth Fleming of Miami, Fla., and Rodney Fleming of Cuyahoga Falls; and a niece, Mrs. John Wagner, of Akron.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday in L. E. Hill Funeral Home, Kingston, with the Rev. Wayne Wardwell officiating. Burial will be in Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

Friends may call in the funeral home.

for president. I'd like to see Sen. Robert Taft in there."

"I'M NOT sure how they'll end up, but I sure feel it's been a crime the way Eisenhower and Truman talked about each other in the campaign. It wasn't anything for either party to be proud of."

"Election results? How in heck can you tell in advance? And anyway, when they get in office they turn out to be strictly for No. 1 anyway. I don't think either party has the right man for a presidential candidate."

"The way I can tell it's going to be close is the way so few fellows are willing to bet."

"I wouldn't bet one dollar on either man for the presidential race."

"I don't know how it will come out, but if it's true the county now has a population of about 29,000, I'm willing to bet the vote will be up around 13,000 or more this year."

"Election results? Are you kidding? I'll tell you Wednesday."

IN MANY little ways too, aside from their spoken comments, local residents indicated they're having a hard time keeping their minds on the business at hand.

There were various signs of the election eve fever, but a woman motorist perhaps gave an illustration of absentmindedness that can stand for all the symptoms.

She slowed to a stop at South Court and Franklin at 11:32 a. m. Monday, glanced at the traffic light and waited until it turned red against her—then she calmly drove through the intersection!

State Patrol Kills Con In New Rioting

narily do not function in any except violence on the highways.

Alvis identified the dead convict as Carlyle Noel, 30, of Cincinnati, who had been serving 2-10 years for burglary.

He said Noel was shot in the head at 9:40 a. m. Three other convicts were wounded earlier Monday. A fourth was shot Sunday.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche, who abandoned the last of his campaign for reelection, is keeping close contact with the situation. Lausche, a resident of Cleveland, faces the possibility he will not be able to return to his home for Tuesday's voting.

Outside the prison, the dull booming of the state highway patrolmen's riot guns sounded like a bombardment over a distant hill. The guns spewed their fire in a giant "X" down the corridors of Cellblocks G, H, I and K.

Only this line of pelting lead kept 1,600 screaming convicts from charging the 21 patrolmen locked inside the cellblocks with them.

OCCASIONALLY one of the mad-dened men tried to reach a stairway at the end of the hall. Then the criss-cross fire lowered and probed at the sneaking figure. That's how the three men were wounded.

This tiny band of patrolmen, 21 facing 1,600, huddled in small shelters at the ends of the corridors in four riot-torn cellblocks.

Alvis said patrolmen are shooting over the heads of the rioting convicts at intervals in an attempt to bring them under control.

There are no locks between the patrolmen and prisoners.

Alvis identified the wounded as: Harold Sweet, 25, of Toledo, serving life for first-degree murder, superficial shoulder wounds.

George Grubb, 32, of Cleveland, serving 4-6 years for forgery, burglary and grand larceny, buckshot wounds in right shoulder and arm.

Ezra Cayson, 27, of Warren serving 1-15 years for burglary, buckshot wounds in right shoulder. Grubb was shot at 3 a. m., Cayson at 5 a. m., Sweet later.

Everett Hodge, 28, of Cincinnati, was shot Sunday trying to escape.

THERE WAS NO indication when prison guards, highway patrolmen and 400 Ohio National Guardsmen will be able to bring an end to the 60-hour, $1 million riot that began Halloween afternoon.

The 1,600 convicts are rioting inside their cellblocks because locks on individual cells have been broken off.

en off. The thin line of patrolmen are inside the locked cellblocks with them, with only their riot guns preventing a mass attack.

Warden Alvis said the 1,600 had no spokesmen. He said his officers had no chance to talk to the men because they couldn't get to them at the present time.

Outside, construction gangs already have begun tearing down the four buildings burned in the Halloween rebellion by 2,000 convicts that brandished all manner of makeshift weapons from meat cleavers to sharpened spoons.

Non-rioting prisoners are not working except in the power house, hospital and dining rooms.

Inside the blocks, prisoners were reported to be causing much damage to prison fixtures. Some were said to have ripped away screening enclosing the tiers, tossing pieces of metal and anything else they could pry loose down to the first tier level.

The warden's revelation that guards can't completely control 1,600 convicts means more than one-third of the prison population is out of hand.

SOME 2,000 convicts were involved in Friday night's tumult. That number broke down into a hard core of 150 to 200 men.

Sunday all the prisoners were fed without incident. They were herded in small groups across the courtyard to the dining hall for two meals, and each got a sandwich to eat in his cell for supper.

Meanwhile, Alvis launched an investigation for the ringleaders of the uprising. His boss, State Welfare Director John H. Lameck, ordered the investigation.

The prisoners claim they should get better food and criticize actions of the Ohio Pardon and Parole Commission.

Fire Destroys Float Shown By Lutherans

One of the floats which brought an extra share of applause in the Pumpkin Show parades has gone up in a burst of flame.

The float prepared by Trinity Lutheran church was destroyed by fire at 4:50 p. m. Sunday while parked behind the parish house, preparatory to dismantling. Cause of the fire was not definitely known.

Otherwise Circleville fire department confined its efforts to battling grass fires over the weekend.

At 11:55 a. m. Saturday, the township truck checked a grass fire in the Cedar Heights area.

AT 7:55 P. M. Saturday, a grass fire was extinguished along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near Ohio street. And about an hour later, another grass fire was stopped after burning over a small area near the station.

A grass fire was extinguished at about 5:32 p. m. Sunday along the Old Canal in Wayne Township.

No serious loss was reported for any of the weekend blazes.

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO, Nov. 3 — Grains moved ahead for fractional gains on the Board of Trade Monday.

Dealings were quite active at the start when wheat took over market leadership and jumped more than a cent. Later, the activity quieted down.

Corn had some difficulty in getting started on the upswing, largely because of large cash receipts, but managed to advance around mid-session. July soybeans were firm on short-covering.

Wheat at noon was 1/4 cent higher, December $2.37 1/2, corn 1/4 cent higher, December $1.66, oats 1/4 cent higher, December 86 1/2, soybeans 1/2 lower to 2 cents higher, November $2.97, and lard 5 cents lower to 3 cents a hundred pounds higher, November $8.37.

All Major Ohio Candidates But Lausche Press Campaign

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3 — Except for Gov. Frank J. Lausche, top candidates in Ohio's 1952 election went right down to the wire Monday in their speech-making quest for votes.

On the Republican side, Charles P. Taft, candidate for governor, was down for appearances in Stark County and Canton before hurrying back to Cincinnati to vote. U. S. Sen. John W. Bricker, seeking reelection, has two speeches in Youngstown Monday night.

Governor Lausche, the Democrat nominee for reelection, was in Cleveland but had no formal meetings planned. He was keeping an eye on the prisoner revolt in the Ohio Penitentiary. Michael V. DiSalle, candidate for senator, had a full day of meetings planned in Cleveland as well as a 6:15 p. m. television appearance which will be carried on stations in Cleveland, Dayton, Columbus and Cincinnati.

The Republicans had most of the activity Sunday.

GOP STATE candidates and their families and U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft, who has been stumping the country in behalf of the presidential candidacy of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, participated in a "family night" television program from Cincinnati. The hour-long program also was telecast through five stations.

Senator Taft reiterated his belief that there will be a Republican victory at the polls.

"With Gen. Eisenhower as President," Taft said, "we can make progress, for he is against excessive power and New Deal, Fair Deal Socialism which have made other countries bankrupt."

He again stressed the need for the election of a Republican Congress, declaring, "it would be a serious handicap if Gen. Eisenhower is confronted with a hostile Congress."

Safety of the United States and liberty of its citizens in the face of threats of Communism were listed by Bricker as the supreme issue in the campaign. He urged voters: "Ask yourself this one vital question: Am I voting to protect the

for president, I'd like to see Sen. Robert Taft in there."

"I'M NOT sure how they'll end up, but I sure feel it's been a crime the way Eisenhower and Truman talked about each other in the campaign. It wasn't anything for either party to be proud of."

"Election results? How in heck can you tell in advance? And anyway, when they get in office they turn out to be strictly for No. 1 anyway. I don't think either party has the right man for a presidential candidate."

"The way I can tell it's going to be close is the way so few fellows are willing to bet."

"I wouldn't bet one dollar on either man for the presidential race."

"I don't know how it will come out, but if it's true the county now has a population of about 29,000, I'm willing to bet the vote will be up around 13,000 or more this year."

"Election results? Are you kidding? I'll tell you Wednesday."

IN MANY little ways too, aside from their spoken comments, local residents indicated they're having a hard time keeping their minds on the business at hand.

There were various signs of the election eve fever, but a woman motorist perhaps gave an illustration of absentmindedness that can stand for all the symptoms.

She slowed to a stop at South Court and Franklin at 11:32 a. m. Monday, glanced at the traffic light and waited until it turned red against her—then she calmly drove through the intersection!

State Patrol Kills Con In New Rioting

Alvis identified the dead convict as Carlyle Noel, 30, of Cincinnati, who had been serving 10 years for burglary.

He said Noel was shot in the head at 9:40 a. m. Three other convicts were wounded earlier Monday. A fourth was shot Sunday.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche, who abandoned the last of his campaign for reelection, is keeping close contact with the situation. Lausche, a resident of Cleveland, faces the possibility he will not be able to return to his home for Tuesday's voting.

Outside the prison, the dull booming of the state highway patrolmen's riot guns sounded like a bombardment over a distant hill. The guns spewed their fire in a giant "X" down the corridors of Cellblocks G, H, I and K.

Only this line of pelting lead kept 1,600 screaming convicts from charging the 21 patrolmen locked inside the cellblocks with them.

OCCASIONALLY one of the mad-dened men tried to reach a stairway at the end of the hall. Then the cross-cross fire lowered and probed at the sneaking figure. That's how the three men were wounded.

This tiny band of patrolmen, 21 facing 1,600, huddled in small shelters at the ends of the corridors in four riot-torn cellblocks.

Alvis said patrolmen are shooting over the heads of the rioting convicts at intervals in an attempt to bring them under control.

This is the only way to stop the prisoners from storming the massed patrolmen, said Alvis. There are no locks between the patrolmen and prisoners.

Alvis identified the wounded as: Harold Sweet, 25, of Toledo, serving life for first-degree murder, superficial shoulder wounds.

George Grubb, 32, of Cleveland, serving 4-62 years for burglary, burglary and grand larceny, gunshot wounds in right shoulder and arm.

Ezra Cayson, 27, of Warren serving 1-15 years for burglary, gunshot wounds in right shoulder. Grubb was shot at 3 a. m., Cayson at 5 a. m., Sweet later.

Everett Hodge, 28, of Cincinnati, was shot Sunday trying to escape.

THERE WAS NO indication when prison guards, highway patrolmen and 400 Ohio National Guardsmen will be able to bring an end to the 60-hour, $1 million riot that began Halloween afternoon.

The 1,600 convicts are rioting inside their cellblocks because locks on individual cells have been broken off.

Man Hurt, Cow Killed After Tire Blows Out

A truck tire blowing out Saturday east of Circleville resulted in injury to the driver and death to a cow grazing in a nearby field.

The accident happened at about 11 a. m. Saturday on Route 56 about two miles east of Circleville.

Driver of the truck, Edwin Hughes, 41, of Columbus, told Sheriff Charles Radcliff a tire on his truck blew out and he lost control.

The truck swerved to the right ditch, through a fence and into a field, where it struck a cow owned by Howard Rhoads, breaking its legs. The cow, valued at about $300, was shot and later slaughtered.

Hughes suffered a bumped right hand and skinned legs.

THE NOBEL AWARD

DESERVED HONOR HAS COME to Dr. Selman A. Waksman, director of the Rutgers University Institute of Microbiology, in the award at Stockholm of the 1952 Nobel Prize for Physiology and Medicine for his important share in the discovery of the wonder drug streptomycin. He will receive his prize of approximately $33,000 December 10 from King Gustaf Adolf of Sweden.

Dr. Waksman was one of a score of scientists nominated by scientific bodies all over the world, but, after months of deliberation by the Caroline Institute of the University of Stockholm, he was chosen by a considerable margin over his nearest competitor.

It was in 1943 that the discovery of streptomycin obtained from earth mold was announced. But it was evolved from 28 years of study begun in 1915 by Dr. Waksman "of a humble group of soil micro-organisms, the actinomycetes, which in recent years have yielded some of the greatest benefits to mankind."

The citation accompanying the award of the Nobel Prize declared streptomycin to be the first effective antibiotic for use against tuberculosis.

All of the adult life of Dr. Waksman, 64 years old, who came as an immigrant from the Ukraine, has been associated with Rutgers and the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station save when he was studying in California for his doctor's degree. A modest man, whose research has evolved many other discoveries that have brought renown to Rutgers, Dr. Waksman, outstanding leader in the field of microbiology, said on learning of the award:

"I feel proud in justifying the ancient saying, 'and from the earth shall come thy salvation.'"

The Yankees are said to be happy over winning the World Series. There is still considerable joy in $6,000, even in these inflated times.

If the population finally outgrows the food supply, as a scientist predicts, what will dietetic doctors do for a living?

Business experts say anti-inflation signs are appearing. Perhaps it will soon be disclosed how high is up.

Universe is in a constant state of motion, an astronomer says. No doubt he had been watching those seeking parking spots.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

In very few countries is it still possible for the people to elect their own governments. In Russia, for instance, the government is chosen by the Politburo (now Presidium) of the Communist Party, and the Politburo or Presidium is appointed by Stalin. Their form of government is technically an oligarchy with no power for the people. In China, the government seized power by revolution. In France and other continental parliamentary countries, the government is formed by coalitions of splinter parties, the will of people expressing itself indirectly.

In the United States, on Tuesday, the people will vote for the party in power or against the party in power. Even so, there is an element of indirection in that the final decision is in the electoral college. It is possible that a candidate may have a majority of the popular vote but not a majority in the electoral college vote. In that case, the electoral vote will prevail.

The people this year vote not only for a President and Vice-President, but also for the entire House of Representatives and about one-third of the Senate. The selection of members of Congress, Representatives and Senators, is of equal importance with the election of the President. That is often overlooked in the ballyhoo of the campaign, but the fact is that the Constitution gives to Congress the basic powers of government and therefore every member of that body is a significant personage in the American scheme of things.

Many Americans were uncertain as to how they would vote this year until Harry Truman barged into the campaign. Adlai Stevenson's first impulse to separate himself from Truman may prove to have been correct. For there can be no doubt that Truman made votes for Eisenhower. What he attacked was not Eisenhower the Republican or Eisenhower the politician. He attacked Eisenhower the man. He attacked the integrity of one of our military figures and public servants whom he, Truman, had not only elevated but to whom he had offered the Democratic nomination for the Presidency.

The lack of logic in Truman's position must have been clear to him because he debased the campaign by a resort to vituperation, smear and vindictive hate not witnessed in recent years. Many who were uncertain as between Stevenson and Eisenhower were not at all doubtful about Truman. They wanted him and his cronies out of office.

The result is that during the last fortnight of the campaign, it reduced itself to a conflict between Truman and Eisenhower, which it ought not to have been. Even should Stevenson be elected, his career as President will bear the scars of Trumanism.

For the voter there is another consideration which has generally been disregarded during the campaign: the Republican Party has achieved unity with one exception, Senator Wayne Morse. Should General Eisenhower be elected, it will be possible for him to work with his party in Congress, Senator Robert A. Taft, the leader in the Senate, and Representative Joe Martin, (Continued on Page Six)

SINCE THERE was no choice about his attending the dinner on the Astrid, Rawls attended himself in his best uniform, and was presently joined by Kathleen and Narcissus. A touch of excited color had put roses in Kathleen's cheeks, and her eyes were sparkling.

"This should be interesting, at least," she breathed.

Rawls understood her perfectly, and nodded. "I'm not worried about it," he said. "Not with you along."

A dimple whose presence he'd never suspected peeped at him from her cheek. "That," she confided, "is the nicest thing you've ever said to me!"

"If the opportunity ever arises, I'll not be remiss that way," he promised, and felt the slight tremor of her fingers as they rested lightly on his arm. But he was filled with a heady sense of exhilaration. If Astrid anticipated a triumph, or Mark Whittier thought to watch him squirm, they were in for a disappointment.

They were welcomed aboard with considerable ceremony, though Astrid's face showed pale despite the excitement. She murmured a greeting, and that was all. Captain Dudley arrived, escorting a woman from his own boat—the only other white woman on any of the three. She was a passenger for Fort Benton, going there to join her husband, a Mrs. John Eller.

The meal was excellent and leisurely, the atmosphere gay, with an occasional false note. No one could legitimately know what the night might bring, or how the hazard of running the blockade might turn out. But it was kept in the background until the close of the meal. Then McQuestion brought it into the open.

"I've one suggestion before we go our separate ways," he said. "One reason why this party was held, with all women on board, is that in tonight's little game, the Astrid, coming second, should have the best chance, everything considered. So I think it might be well if the ladies would remain on board here tonight—to perhaps comfort one another, and for such security as may be possible. Once safely past, each can return to her own quarters."

It sounded reasonable, the way he put it. Rawls heard the suggestion unhesitatingly, with the ready acceptance. Damn the man! he swore softly to himself, and shot a quick glance at McQuestion, ranged on to Mark Whittier. Did they have any inkling of what he had in mind? But that was impossible, since he had confided in no one.

tion on McQuestion's part, to have things under tighter control for the night. But it was decidedly upsetting to Rawls and his own plan. Though McQuestion didn't guess, the Astrid was slated to go third in line tonight, to be the boat which would feel the impact of renegade cannon.

Rawls pondered uneasily as he returned to the Varina. The dinner had dragged long past the time which might reasonably have been required, as though the plotters were deliberately stalling every moment until the time for action. If he was to carry out his own plan, it must be done without delay. And despite these new complications, still it must be done. There were a dozen innocent people on board the Pride of Kansas for every one aboard the Astrid.

The Varina and the Pride had tied up to trees along the shore, with lookouts posted to guard against possible surprise. But the Astrid had dropped anchor in the sluggish backwater, though she too lay close to shore.

Securing a coil of rope, Rawls kicked off his boots, divested himself of shirt and pants, then let himself over the side and down into the water as smoothly as a seal. It was cold, but he didn't mind. Keeping in the deeper shadows of the shore, he reached the Astrid, where the anchor rope plunged tautly into the water.

Tying his own rope to it was simple. The next part was tricky, to dive and swim under the Astrid, coming up on the far side, near the shore. There was always the risk of finding a pile of debris on the bottom, anywhere in this river, the chance of becoming entangled in such a cluster.

But he reached the far side without incident, climbed the bank and tied the other end of his rope to a tree, pulling it tight. When the moment came to raise the Astrid's anchor, they would have trouble, causing a long-enough delay to alter the plan.

One detail remained. He swam across to the Pride of Kansas, and climbed on board without incident, then moved soundlessly with bare feet. He halted at sight of a shadowy figure. The outline was familiar, and he whispered Dudley's name.

Dudley spun about, but he was a man of cool nerves. His reply, though amazed, was guarded: "Rawls! What are you doing here?"

"Testing out how good a watch is kept," Rawls said lightly. "If I'd been an Indian, I could have knifed your lookout and no one the wiser. But we're getting out of here, and the point is this: The news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—As this weird presidential campaign approaches its windup, a question frequently raised in political and military circles concerns the failure of Generals George C. Marshall and Douglas MacArthur to extend any reinforcement to their erstwhile friend and long-time Army associate—General Eisenhower. Indeed, it involves their indirect efforts to hurt Ike's candidacy.

While the behavior of the nation's top brass, except for Ike's, will not sway any great mass of voters, the Marshall-MacArthur attitude has perplexed friends and well-wishers of the Republican nominee. Without any partisan display, according to this viewpoint, the two could have given public testimony to Eisenhower's ability in other fields than military.

On the other hand, their stiff-lipped silence could have an adverse effect, and every vote will count tomorrow. Marshall, in particular, has a large and loyal following among civilians and the military. He is an elder statesman rather than a retired warrior.

ANTI-IKE—Unless there should be a last-minute utterance, MacArthur has not commented publicly on the campaign, or expressed a kind word for his former aide in Washington and in the Philippines. Nor has he insisted upon the withdrawal of his name as a presidential entry in several states, where he might attract enough votes to injure Ike.

Rightly or wrongly, Marshall's flanking brush with the political battle has been regarded as anti-Eisenhower. When he was asked if he would vote in Virginia tomorrow, he replied sharply that he had never cast a ballot, and that he would adhere to that attitude in 1952.

Although seeming to reflect an attitude of neutrality, it also appeared in the light of a slap at the man with whom he once had a father-and-son relationship.

EXPLANATION—A partial but questionable explanation is that MacArthur and Marshall do not believe they should take part in politics. Many Pentagon high-ups fear lest the campaign review of military and diplomatic decisions, as well as the attacks on Ike, may react against their profession in peace and war.

That consideration certainly cannot apply to our former commander in Japan and Korea. He plunged into politics with his letter to Minority Leader Martin, which brought on his summary recall. He made a spectacular appearance before the GOP Convention, and secretly hoped for the nomination.

It could govern in Marshall's case. However, he accepted the political post of secretary of state under Truman. Many other officers of a high rank have participated in the Stevenson-Eisenhower struggle.

His retirement makes him a private civilian. Thus, in view of the intense, nationwide, get-out-the-vote drive, his abdication of that primary responsibility in such decisive language had an anti-Ike tinge. Whether he meant it or not, it led many to believe that he planned it in the way it has been interpreted. Marshall is an extremely cautious man in words and actions.

MAC'S ATTITUDE—There may be personal and professional reasons behind their attitude. The emotional MacArthur frequently showed during World War II that he was not entirely happy over the fact that the more responsible war assignment had been given to his junior officer.

He bombarded the Pentagon with complaints when weapons were directed to North Africa and Europe instead of to his island-hopping campaign in the Far Pacific. He thought that he was being slighted. Now, in politics as in war, Ike has topped the man who likes to be known, today and by history, as "America's greatest soldier."

FAR EAST POLICY—Marshall, of course, is soured by no such jealousies. He may have been wounded by Ike's enforced association with the senators—Jenner and McCarthy—who have tried to discredit him. But, as a young Pennsylvania Democrat who could not win an appointment to West Point for that reason, he knows enough of practical politics to understand the need for Party unity.

A more likely reason is Eisenhower's general criticism of our pre-Korea policy in the Far East, with the alleged failure to support Chiang Kai-shek after the Japanese surrender. Ike has also attributed our Chinese program to the influence of leftists within the State Department.

What Ike may have forgotten is that, as a result of Marshall's report and action after his unsuccessful Chinese mission to reconcile the Nationalists and Communists, his old benefactor was chiefly responsible for that policy. Thus, in attacking the Truman-Acheson Administration as responsible for the Korean tragedy, Eisenhower is really assailing Marshall.

TIDELANDS—A group of Texas geologists has just made a report on the value of their state's tidelands that may influence votes tomorrow. As against hostile hints that no great amount of petroleum may be discovered off the coast, they estimate the worth of the disputed and submerged lands at $80 billion. That's a lot of loot in any political language.

THE NOBEL AWARD

DESERVED HONOR HAS COME TO Dr. Selman A. Waksman, director of the Rutgers University Institute of Microbiology, in the award at Stockholm of the 1952 Nobel Prize for Physiology and Medicine for his important share in the discovery of the wonder drug streptomycin. He will receive his prize of approximately $33,000 December 10 from King Gustaf Adolf of Sweden.

Dr. Waksman was one of a score of scientists nominated by scientific bodies all over the world, but, after months of deliberation by the Caroline Institute of the University of Stockholm, he was chosen by a considerable margin over his nearest competitor.

It was in 1943 that the discovery of streptomycin obtained from earth mold was announced. But it was evolved from 28 years of study begun in 1915 by Dr. Waksman "of a humble group of soil micro-organisms, the actinomycetes, which in recent years have yielded some of the greatest benefits to mankind."

The citation accompanying the award of the Nobel Prize declared streptomycin to be the first effective antibiotic for use against tuberculosis.

All of the adult life of Dr. Waksman, 64 years old, who came as an immigrant from the Ukraine, has been associated with Rutgers and the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station save when he was studying in California for his doctor's degree. A modest man, whose research has evolved many other discoveries that have brought renown to Rutgers, Dr. Waksman, outstanding leader in the field of microbiology, said on learning of the award:

"I feel proud in justifying the ancient saying, 'and from the earth shall come thy salvation.'"

The Yankees are said to be happy over winning the World Series. There is still considerable joy in $6,000, even in these inflated times.

If the population finally outgrows the food supply, as a scientist predicts, what will dietetic doctors do for a living?

Business experts say anti-inflation signs are appearing. Perhaps it will soon be disclosed how high is up.

Universe is in a constant state of motion, an astronomer says. No doubt he had been watching those seeking parking spots.

In very few countries is it still possible for the people to elect their own governments. In Russia, for instance, the government is chosen by the Politburo (now Presidium) of the Communist Party, and the Politburo or Presidium is appointed by Stalin. Their form of government is technically an oligarchy with no power for the people. In China, the government seized power by revolution. In France and other continental parliamentary countries, the government is formed by coalitions of splinter parties, the will of people expressing itself indirectly.

In the United States, on Tuesday, the people will vote for the party in power or against the party in power. Even so, there is an element of indirection in that the final decision is in the electoral college. Dudley spun about, but he was a man of cool nerves. His reply, though amazed, was guarded: "Rawls! What are you doing here?"

"Testing out how good a watch is kept," Rawls said lightly. "If I'd been an Indian, I could have knifed your lookout and no one the wiser. But we're getting out of here, and the point is this: The Astrid will be delayed in following, when I lead out with the Varina. Be on watch and swing in, right behind me. We'll let the Astrid go third tonight."

Dudley hesitated, perplexed. This was not according to agreement, and something was afoot. "Could you tell me why?" he asked.

"I could, but I'd prefer not to. I'm hoping you'll take my word that it's for your own good, and that of your ship."

He could almost see the workings of Dudley's mind. The Astrid carried Lomax McQuestion, and his reputation on the river was scarcely savory. Thought of the trickery associated with it ran in Dudley's mind. After a moment, he nodded.

"If you say so, all right," he agreed.

They gripped hands, then Rawls let himself back over the side. He reached the Varina and donned his clothes, with no one the wiser. It was still minutes early, but he gave the order to get under way. For the present he was in command, and men's lives hung on his decision.

Worse still, women's lives were involved, and that was a sharp thorn of worry in his mind. If the Astrid and those on board should fall prey to the grim horde who waited on shore...

But it was too late for a change of plan. Steam had been kept at the ready in the boilers, and the Varina, moving without a light, glided softly out of the backwater, the paddle wheel churning as they headed into the current. As Rawls swung out and past, the Pride of Kansas fell in behind like one duck following the lead of another. There was confusion aboard the Astrid, where frantic if silent efforts were being made to clear the obstruction and raise the anchor.

So far, all was going well. The Astrid wouldn't be long delayed, but now the position of the three packets could not be changed in running the gauntlet. The thin moon was gone, but the sky was clear of clouds, the stars giving sufficient light to outline the dark shores. A boat on the water was only a darker shadow, but it was hopeless to expect that the hawk-eyed watchers on the bank would fail to see them, particularly as they came under the muzzle of the cannon.

Groucho Marx, explains his brother Harpo, is infatuated with words. "Groucho," he says, "doesn't regard words the way the rest of us do. He looks at them upside down, backwards, from the middle out to the end, and from the end back to the middle. Next he drops them in a mental mixer, and studies them some more. Groucho doesn't look for double meanings. He looks for quadruple meanings. And usually finds them."

One day an officious lady at the Brown Derby in Hollywood pushed a waiter aside, leveled a finger at Groucho and demanded, "Are you Harpo Marx?" Groucho raised an eyebrow and replied, "No. Are you?"

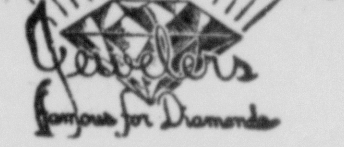

Benjamin Franklin recorded the fact that his mother-in-law was reluctant to entrust her daughter to his care because he was a printer. There were already two printing offices in the Colonies, she pointed out, and she was darned if there was room for a third.

association with the senators—Jenner and McCarthy—who have tried to discredit him. But, as a young Pennsylvania Democrat who could not win an appointment to West Point for that reason, he knows enough of practical politics to understand the need for party unity.

A more likely reason is Eisenhower's general criticism of our pre-Korea policy in the Far East, with the alleged failure to support Chiang Kai-shek after the Japanese surrender. Ike has also attributed our Chinese program to the influence of leftists within the State Department.

What Ike may have forgotten is that, as a result of Marshall's report and action after his unsuccessful Chinese mission to reconcile the Nationalists and Communists, his old benefactor was chiefly responsible for that policy. Thus, in attacking the Truman-Acheson Administration as responsible for the Korean tragedy, Eisenhower is really assailing Marshall.

TIDELANDS—A group of Texas geologists have just made a report on the value of their state's tidelands that may influence votes tomorrow. As against hostile hiats that no great amount of petroleum may be discovered off the coast, they estimate the worth of the disputed and submerged lands at $80 billion. That's a lot of loot in any political language.

MAC'S ATTITUDE—There may be personal and professional reasons behind their attitude. The emotional MacArthur frequently showed during World War II that he was not entirely happy over the fact that the more responsible war assignment had been given to his junior officer. He bombarded the Pentagon with complaints when weapons were directed to North Africa and Europe instead of to his island-hopping campaign in the Far Pacific. He thought that he was being slighted. Now, in politics as in war, Ike has topped the man who likes to be known, today and by history, as "America's greatest soldier."

FAR EAST POLICY—Marshall, of course, is soured by no such jealousies. He may have been wounded by Ike's enforced

Miss Ward, Mr. Frazier Wed In Saturday Ceremony

Rites Are Read In South Bloomfield

South Bloomfield Methodist church was the setting on Saturday for the wedding of Miss Barbara Jean Ward and Neal M. Frazier.

The ceremony was read at 7:30 p. m. by the Rev. C. A. Cowan before an altar decorated with chrysanthemums and greenery.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Catherine Ward of near Ashville and Virgil F. Ward of Detroit, Mich., and Mr. Frazier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Frazier of Walnut Township.

Escorted by her grandfather, John Schlarp, the bride approached the altar in a ballerina length gown of white chantilly lace and net over satin. The bodice was fitted and the tight sleeves came to points over the wrists and were caught by twelve tiny lace covered buttons. At the Peter Pan collar, she wore a gold brooch, set with pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. The bouffant skirt, which featured wide lace panels, was worn over a billowing crinoline petticoat.

Her chapel length veil of imported French illusion was held in place by a Juliet cap of satin edged with pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with white carnations tied with satin streamers.

Miss Joan Graham of Ashville served as maid of honor. She wore a ballerina length gown of deep orchid velvet with an over skirt and stole of nylon tulle. Her small head piece was also of velvet and she carried a Colonial bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Her single strand of pearls was a gift of the bride.

Robert L. Frazier of Columbus, brother of the groom, served as best man.

Mrs. Donald Hatfield, organist, played a program of nuptial music including, "Indian Love Call," "Oh Promise Me," "Meditation," and "Wedding March."

For the ceremony, Mrs. Ward wore a navy blue antique shantung dress with winter white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Frazier was dressed in a royal purple sheer wool dress with which she combined beige accessories and a corsage of white chrysanthemums and carnations.

When the couple left for their wedding trip, the new Mrs. Frazier was wearing a gray gaberdine suit, with cloud white accessories and the white carnations from her bridal bouquet.

The bride was graduated from Ashville high school in 1950 and Mrs. Frazier attended the Walnut Township high school. They are both associated with the Jeffrey Manufacturing Company in Columbus.

Following their wedding trip, the couple will make their home at 220 East Mound street in Circleville.

Zwayers, Barrs Entertain Group

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Zwyer and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Barr, Jr. entertained with a Halloween party Thursday evening in the basement of the Zwyer home. The room was decorated with lighted jack o' lanterns, bright colored leaves and other decorations appropriate to the Halloween season.

For the masquerade, a prize was presented Evelyn Delong for the ugliest costume. Games were played during the evening, after which refreshments were served.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Goeller, Mr. and Mrs. Manley Carothers, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Barr, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Delong, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dumm, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moyer, Mrs. Phyllis Struckman, Miss Betty Kocher and Robert Peters.

Rites Are Read In South Bloomfield

South Bloomfield Methodist church was the setting on Saturday for the wedding of Miss Barbara Jean Ward and Neal M. Frazier.

The ceremony was read at 7:30 p. m. by the Rev. C. A. Cowan before an altar decorated with chrysanthemums and greenery.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Catherine Ward of near Ashville and Virgil F. Ward of Detroit, Mich., and Mr. Frazier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Frazier of Walnut Township.

Escorted by her grandfather, John Schlarp, the bride approached the altar in a ballerina length gown of white tulle with lace and net over satin. The bodice was fitted and the tight sleeves came to points over the wrists and were caught by twelve tiny lace covered buttons. At the Peter Pan collar, she wore a gold brooch, set with pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. The bouffant skirt, which featured wide lace panels, was worn over a billowing crinoline petticoat.

Her chapel length veil of imported French illusion was held in place by a Juliet cap of satin edged with pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with white carnations tied with satin streamers.

Miss Joan Graham of Ashville served as maid of honor. She wore a ballerina length gown of deep orchid velvet with an over skirt and stole of nylon tulle. Her small head piece was also of velvet and she carried a Colonial bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Her single strand of pearls was a gift of the bride.

Robert L. Frazier of Columbus, brother of the groom, served as best man.

Mrs. Donald Hatfield, organist, played a program of nuptial music including, "Indian Love Call," "Oh Promise Me," "Meditation," and "Wedding March."

For the ceremony, Mrs. Ward wore a navy blue antique shantung dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Frazier was dressed in a royal purple sheer wool dress with which she combined beige accessories and a corsage of white chrysanthemums and carnations.

When the couple left for their wedding trip, the new Mrs. Frazier was wearing a gray gaberdine suit, with cloud white accessories and the white carnations from her bridal bouquet.

The bride was graduated from Ashville high school in 1930 and Mrs. Frazier attended the Walnut Township high school. They are both associated with the Jeffrey Manufacturing Company in Columbus.

Following their wedding trip, the couple will make their home at 220 East Mound street in Circleville.

Zwayers, Barrs Entertain Group

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Zwyer and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Barr, Jr. entertained with a Halloween party Thursday evening in the basement of the Zwyer home. The room was decorated with lighted jack o' lanterns, bright colored leaves and other decorations appropriate to the Halloween season.

For the masquerade, a prize was presented Evelyn Delong for the ugliest costume. Games were played during the evening, after which refreshments were served.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Goeller, Mr. and Mrs. Manley Carothers, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Barr, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Delong, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dumm, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moyer, Mrs. Phyllis Struckman, Miss Betty Kocher and Robert Peters.

Rotary Bulletin Recalls Era Of Torch Parade

"Rotary Flashes," Circleville Rotary Club's news bulletin, recently reminded its readers that this community over a century ago regarded a torch-light parade as a regular part of an election fever.

And if the parade didn't do enough for the fever, there was hard cider at the more convenient public spots—and for free.

As an example of how Circleville voters were lured on an organized basis in those times, the Rotary bulletin item, written by Mac Noggle, describes events of the bitter "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too!" campaign of 1840.

The election battle cry was used by those supporting William Henry Harrison for president. Harrison, while governor of the Indiana Territory, directed an American force of about 800 to victory in 1811 over a vastly superior Indian force in the Battle of Tippecanoe.

AS FOR Circleville in that election campaign of 1840, Noggle describes it in part as follows:

Every week saw torch-light parades by the Whigs or Democrats; usually ending on West Mound Street hill, then known as Mt. Gilboa. Free, hard cider in barrels, conveniently placed, added stimulation and enthusiasm to these occasions.

During this campaign many notable spokes from the platform on Mt. Gilboa. Without doubt, John W. Bear, a blacksmith from Bloomfield was the most colorful character to appear.

A native of Maryland, he ran away from his indenture to a tavern keeper there and, evading capture, crossed the mountains and settled at South Bloomfield, where he worked as a blacksmith for the stage coach line.

After his wife taught him to read, he took an increasing interest in politics and, because the Whig party supported education it received his allegiance.

Unknown outside of South Bloomfield, he accompanied the county delegation to Columbus, merely to enjoy the festivities of the state convention of his party. He went in his blacksmith clothes, apron and all.

DURING A lull at one of the speaker's stands, one of Bear's townsmen started the cry, "Bear, a speech from Bear!" The shout was taken up by the crowd and soon the Pickaway blacksmith found himself on the platform.

He made a hit; the crowd went wild with enthusiasm. He hurried back to Bloomfield, said goodbye to his wife and children; said he'd be gone a couple of days on a speaking tour.

He got back on election day, eight months later. He had stumped the country.

The humor of the Buckeye Blacksmith was crude. His critics said it was vulgar. His anecdotes always led to a vigorous audience response. Hecklers added zest to his speaking and his replies were pungent.

Walnut Pupils To Have Straw Vote Tuesday

Seniors of Walnut Township school Monday were preparing for Tuesday's big presidential election. Although unable to cast ballots in the real election, the Walnut seniors plan a mock campaign and vote in the school.

Beginning the program Monday, an assembly was to have been held in the form of a rally to inform the school's pupils of the issues and candidates.

Representing the Republicans in the special assembly were to have been Linda Silbaugh, Charles Hines and Mary Ann Noecker.

REPRESENTING the Democrats were to have been Bob Copeland, Dick Smith and Pat Stumbo.

In addition, Jo Ann Sykes was to have outlined the arguments of those favoring the Constitutional amendment convention and Charles Martindale was to have given opinions of those disfavoring the proposal.

On Tuesday, pupils of the school will conduct their straw vote on national, state and local issues.

On this subject, I refer you to Volume III of Herbert Hoover's biography which shows clearly what happens to a President who does not have a working majority in Congress. Not only is he stymied, the country is thrown into chaos.

Governor Stevenson has not succeeded in unifying his party. In many of the Southern and Southwestern states the opposition to him is so pronounced that he would start with a minority in Congress.

1952 Boy Scout Fund Campaign To Be Held Here This Thursday

Pickaway County's 1952 Boy Scout financial drive will be held here Thursday.

This year's finance drive will be a one-day affair, a dawn-to-dusk drive conducted by all men interested in Scouting.

Kick-off for this year's big finance drive will be an "Early Bird Breakfast" beginning at 8 a. m. Thursday in First EUB church service center.

More than 120 men are expected to attend the special kick-off program, which will feature Dr. H. L. Yochum, dean of Capital University, as guest speaker.

NO SPECIAL goal has been set in this year's drive for Boy Scout funds. Last year's one-day drive netted a total of $2,900.

Benefitting from the drive will be five Boy Scout troops, three Cub Scout Packs and two Explorer units. In addition, several new Scout units are expected to be formed here next year.

Heading the 1952 Scout drive is Henry Reid Jr., who will be aided by six sub-chairmen throughout the county.

Chairmen in the various villages throughout the county will be: David Orr, Circleville; Mayor Raymond Lindsey, Ashville; Gerald Reynolds, Williamsport; Richard Kirkpatrick, New Holland; Brian Bradbury, Commercial Point; and Cecil Reid, Darbyville.

In Circleville, a total of 80 men have been assigned to cover local homes and business places.

Reid pointed out it requires $10 per Scout to take care of administrative costs for one year, and needs are greater this year with an expanding local program.

Everyone to be contacted in the big Scout drive has been mailed a letter telling of the drive and how the money which is donated is employed.

Editor Says Press Fails To Do Job

DENVER, Nov. 3.—A North Carolina editor rapped the American press and its campaign coverage Friday, saying the majority of papers have not even tried to be informative during the presidential campaign.

The statement was made by Jonathan Daniels of the Raleigh, N. C., News and Observer during a luncheon attended by Denver newspapermen. He declared:

"I don't think our press, in the majority, has even tried to be informative in this campaign. I don't think the newspapers have been as bad as the slick magazines. They have gone so far they have reduced their effect on people."

Many Greeks in the United States are named "Pappas," which means "the son of," says the National Geographic Society.

although his party might have a numerical majority.

Should the Democrats organize the Senate, the principal chairmanships would go to Democrats who are anti-Truman and who would continue to be suspicious of Stevenson, at any rate, for some time.

Harry Truman's Administration has largely been messed up because he has been at odds with Congress, not only the 80th Congress, but the 79th, the 81st and the 82nd. Most of the exposures of the weakness of the Truman Administration, the corruption, the subversion, the neglect have been the achievements of Democratic chairmen. In Congress, his own party has not stood by him, passing important legislation over his veto.

This atmosphere bodes no good for the country.

Editor Says Press Fails To Do Job

DENVER, Nov. 3.—A North Carolina editor rapped the American press and its campaign coverage Friday, saying the majority of papers have not even tried to be informative during the presidential campaign.

The statement was made by Jonathan Daniels of the Raleigh, N. C., News and Observer during a luncheon attended by Denver newspaper men. He declared:

"I don't think our press, in the majority, has even tried to be informative in this campaign. I don't think the newspapers have been as bad as the slick magazines. They have gone so far they have reduced their effect on people."

Long Campaign Trails Ending To Face Big Question Mark

By The Associated Press

The long campaign trails are ending on a big question mark as the great political spotlight swings Tuesday to the most ardently wooed people on earth, the American voters.

It will be up to them to decide whether they want Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower or Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson to guide the nation for the next four years.

Both presidential nominees and their running mates, Sen. John J. Sparkman, Democrat, and Sen. Richard M. Nixon, Republican, will close out the campaign late Monday night with a final appeal for votes over nationwide radio and television hookups.

Stevenson and Sparkman will speak from Chicago; Eisenhower and Nixon from Boston.

In addition to a President and vice president, an estimated 55 million or more voters will elect 432 members of the House of Representatives, 34 senators, 29 governors, numerous other state and local officers, and will pass judgment on a wide variety of referenda.

MAINE, VOTING in September, already has elected a governor, a senator and three House members, all Republicans. Maine will vote Tuesday on the President ticket along with the rest of the nation.

There are 75,579,785 persons eligible to vote but on the basis of past performance it is expected that approximately 20 million of them will not do so.

But like the outcome of the election itself, nobody seems too sure about this. All indications point to a record outpouring of ballots, surpassing by far the 49,820,000 rolled up in the Roosevelt-Willkie contest of 1940, and this one of the unknown quantities that has political prognosticators puzzled.

Forecasts of fair and mild weather over most of the nation could help raise the turnout.

Eisenhower and Stevenson, reluctant prospects for the nation's highest office last spring, proved to be two of the 'fightingest' candidates in decades once the battle was joined.

Sparring lightly at first, like two boxers feeling each other out, they gradually stepped up the tempo until the campaign took on the aspects of a free-for-all slugfest, with Truman and Taft, Nixon and Sparkman, McCarthy and Morse, Dewey and Barkley and all the other partisans flailing away around them.

KOREA, Communism and corruption in government, peace and prosperity were the dominant issues.

"You never had it so good—don't let them take it away from you," said the Democrats.

"It's time for a change—20 years is too long for one party to stay in power," said the Republicans.

Trumanism, taxes, the cost of living, foreign policy and prosperity, farm prices, the Taft-Hartley Act and civil rights all were batted around in the two months of strenuous whistle-stopping and aerial electioneering.

Both presidential candidates were accused of being "captives" and both hotly denied it.

Eisenhower was pictured by opposition speakers as the "captive" of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and the Republican "Old Guard." Stevenson was depicted as the "captive" of President Truman's "Fair Deal."

Harry S. Truman, the first President who wasn't seeking reelection since Calvin Coolidge did not choose to run in 1928, campaigned just as hard for the Democratic ticket as if he were on it.

He obviously relished it, saying at one of his final whistle-stops: "I kinda hate to give it up."

BOTH GENERAL Eisenhower, the hero of the Normandy beach invasion of World War II, and Stevenson, the urbane and witty governor of Illinois, were outwardly confident of victory as they prepared to settle back and await the verdict, Eisenhower in New York and Stevenson in Springfield, Ill.

But the professional politicians and the poll takers were not so sure.

While the popular vote may be close, the electoral vote could be lopsided if there is any groundswell of sentiment in the more populous states.

Especially perplexing to the political seers were such big states as New York, Illinois and California, which among them hold 104 of the 266 electoral votes needed to win.

Toward the end of the campaign, Eisenhower announced that if elected he would make a personal trip to Korea to try to bring the war to an "early and honorable end."

Stevenson countered this with a declaration that there is "no slick and easy" way out of the Korean stalemate, and that the ultimate decision lies in Moscow, not in Korea.

The Democratic nominee shortly afterward took a midnight leave of his campaign train to fly to Chester, Ill., and end a prison uprising.

AN UNUSUAL aspect of what Eisenhower called his "great crusade" was his aerial foray into the traditionally Democratic South, and his insistence that the Southern vote should not be taken for granted.

GOP hopes on this score were raised by the defection of such Southern Democrats as Govs. Allan Shivers of Texas, James F. Byrnes of South Carolina and Robert Kennon of Louisiana.

On the other hand, the Democrats counted on old party ties, plus the campaigning of House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas and many other congressmen to keep the Dixie vote in line.

Most notable of the Republican defections was Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, an early Eisenhower booster who "resigned" from the GOP because he said it was "dominated by reactionaries."

Woman Scalds Halloweeners, 5

LIMA, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Sarah Root, 77, is in jail here charged with throwing scalding hot water on a five-year-old Halloween celebrant.

The small victim, Martin Whitted was treated in Memorial Hospital for burns on the face, neck and arms. The charge against the woman is: throwing hot water with intent to maim or disfigure.

There were about 21 million grade school pupils in the United States in 1951.

CHS Athletes
Begin Cage
Work Monday

First call to basketball practice for Circleville high school athletes was issued Monday by William "Red" Courtney.

Courtney, beginning his first year as cage coach for the Tigers, said the first practice session was due for Pickaway County Fairgrounds Coliseum after Monday's classes.

Tiger athletes playing on the football team will be picked up following Friday night's Washington C.H.-Circleville football game.

Courtney said the Tiger cagers will face a 17-game schedule this year, including one four-game carnival affair just after Christmas.

OPENING game of the 1952-53 season will be Nov. 29 at Chillicothe. A pre-season practice tilt with Bucky Walters' Columbus East cagers also is promised.

Assisting Courtney in his hard-work duties this year will be Dick Boyd.

Complete schedule of games for the CHS'ers this season follows:
Nov. 26—At Chillicothe.
Dec. 5—At London.
Dec. 12—At Westerville.
Dec. 15—Lucasville.
Dec. 19—Washington C.H.
Dec. 23—St. Charles.
Dec. 27—Carnival at Waverly with Jackson and Washington C.H.
Jan. 2—Greenfield.
Jan. 6—Aquinus.
Jan. 9—Hillsboro.
Jan. 16—at Wilmington.
Jan. 23—Open.
Jan. 27—Chillicothe.
Jan. 30—Wilmington.
Feb. 3—Bexley.
Feb. 6—at Washington C.H.
Feb. 10—at Greenfield.
Feb. 13—at Grove City.
Feb. 20—at Hillsboro.

No Such Thing
As A 'Turkhen'

RALEIGH, N.C.—There isn't any such thing as a cross between a chicken and a turkey, says E. W. Glazener, professor of poultry genetics at North Carolina State College school of agriculture.

What farmers are probably raising when they speak of their "turkhen" is the "Naken-Neck fowl," known variously as the Transylvanian Naked Neck, Bare Necks and Hackles. The breed has no feathers on most of the neck, and the area of skin lacking feathers becomes loose, thickened and deep red in color at times, he says.

"Attempts to produce such a cross have been made at Kansas State College and at the Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md.," Glazener says. "Experiments there have resulted in the fertilization of some of the eggs, but the embryos died in the early stages in incubation."

Mohawk Icers Dominate Loop

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3 — (AP)—The Cincinnati Mohawks, who got into the American Hockey League play-offs only once in three years, have taken over the International League like they own it.

Playing six games in the first nine nights of the 1952-53 season, the Mohawks have been beaten only once and they're holding a four-point lead over the second-place Toledo Mercurys. The Mohawks swept two lopsided games with Grand Rapids during the weekend, winning 11-1 and 9-1—Toledo also was a two-time winner, beating Troy 5-2 and 5-3.

Tiger Gridders In Final Week; Meet Washington Friday Night

Circleville Tiger footballers moved into their final week of the 1952 season Monday with the toughest test of the season awaiting them.

The CHS'ers will bow out for the year Friday night when they travel to Washington C.H. to meet the powerful Blue Lion gridders, ranked fourth in Ohio.

Red and Black warriors Monday were to have opened their final week of practice with conditioning drills.

Circleville last Thursday night proved they are able to play ball if so inclined as they swept into a thrilling second half 18-13 victory over invading Westerville Wildcats after trailing 13-0 at the midmark.

Tiger Coach Steve Brudzinski said Tuesday and Wednesday sessions will be rough this week, with scrimmages probable both days to prepare the team for Friday's contest.

Thursday's final pre-game practice session will be an under-the-light workout Thursday night at the school.

BRUDZINSKI said Friday's starting lineup probably will be the same as in past games, but that next year's team also probably will

Sorority Girls
Fail To Tally TD

ATHENS, Nov. 3 — (AP)—Sorority girls at Ohio University have offensive power and defensive deception but they lack scoring ability in touch-football games.

The Pi Beta Phi's and the Alpha Delta's played to a scoreless tie Sunday in the sixth annual Powder Bowl game. Four previous engagements have been scoreless. Two thousand fans witnessed the struggle. The Danton Runyon Cancer Fund benefited from the tilt.

28 Teams Listed
As Undeclared

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 — (AP)—Twenty-eight college football teams remain among the country's elite with unbeaten and untied records.

Peru Teachers and Nebraska boasts the best mark — eight straight triumphs without a defeat. Among the major colleges, Georgia Tech, Maryland and UCLA all have won seven while Michigan State and Southern California have captured six.

Fight Breaks Up
Football Game

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3 — (AP)—The Cincinnati Purcell - Roger Bacon high school football game was called off by the officials with 20 seconds remaining Friday night after players of both teams started fighting in the middle of the field.

Fighting went on for two minutes before the officials called it quits. Purcell won, 27-0.

Mengert Wins
Mexican Crown

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 3 — (AP)—Al Mengert is the proud possessor of the Mexican amateur golf title.

Mengert, 23-year - old native of Spokane, Wash., won the 27th annual Mexican event Sunday, defeating Count Henri Lamaze of France, 1-up, in the 36-hole final.

'Bank Night' Suit
Given Dismissal

ALLIANCE, Nov. 3 — (AP)—Suits for more than $1½ million against three theaters here have been dismissed by an agreement of attorneys. Filed by Horace and Leta Williams, the suits had charged "bank night" was a lottery.

Main defendant was March Theaters, Inc. of Cleveland, operator of three Alliance theaters. Lawyers would not say whether any cash settlement was made.

Only One Pro Football Team Following Early Predictions

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3 — (AP)—Before the season started, it was predicted the National Football League conference races would be wide open affairs, with at least three teams in each division battling for honors.

Well, so far, with the season exactly half over, only one team has followed the form charts in each of its games. That's the Dallas Texans. They've dropped six straight, just as expected.

Even the high-powered San Francisco 49ers aren't safe in this uncertain league.

The Chicago Bears, 15 - point underdogs, handed the 49ers their first setback of the season Sunday with a jolting 20-17 victory on George Blanda's 43-yard field goal in the fourth period.

San Francisco had won five straight games and was threatening to make a complete runaway with the National Conference. But now it's a close race, with the Detroit Lions (4-2) only one game behind in second place.

THE LIONS pulled a mild upset themselves by defeating the Cleveland Browns, 17-6, as Bobby Layne tossed two touchdown passes to end Leon Hart.

This game not only moved Detroit closer to San Francisco, but also sent the American Conference into a two-way tie for first place between Cleveland and the New York Giants.

Ending a two-game losing streak, the Giants moved into a tie for the lead by walloping the Chicago Cardinals, 28-6, on two touchdown passes by Charley Conerly and two TD runs by Eddie Price.

The situation should clear somewhat next week when the Giants play host to the 49ers in what figures to be one of the top games of the season.

A total of 210,941 fans turned out Sunday for a full six-game card which also saw the Los Angeles Rams break loose for the first time this season to trounce the Texans, 42-20; Pittsburgh stopped a late Washington rally for a 24-23 victory, and Green Bay nipped Philadelphia, 12-10.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3 — (AP)—The Cincinnati Mohawks, who got into the American Hockey League playoffs only once in three years, have taken over the International League like they own it.

Playing six games in the first nine nights of the 1952-53 season, the Mohawks have been beaten only once and they're holding a four-point lead over the second-place Toledo Mercurys. The Mohawks swept two lopsided games with Grand Rapids during the weekend, winning 11-1 and 9-1—Toledo also was a two-time winner, beating Troy 5-2 and 5-3.

Spain's New Bonus Plan Bypasses The Forgotten Man--The Laborer

By HAL BOYLE

MADRID—Spain has come up with a curious program for the problem of inflation which now bedevils almost every modern land.

After losing its attempt to keep prices in check during the past year, Spain has decided to try holding the fort by granting a series of cash bonuses to workers instead of flat salary increases.

This is a compromise worked out by Generalissimo Francisco Franco's advisers, who earlier licked Spain's black market problem by doing away with bizarre experiments that had crippled individual effort here.

The stop-gap compromise calls for one or more monthly salary bonuses to all employees of private firms—bonuses to be paid entirely by the employer. It was adopted after a heated argument between Spain's labor minister and the minister of commerce.

The labor minister said the workers simply could not live on their present income. The commerce minister contended a general pay hike would bring a new wave of inflation.

The number of these emergency one-month salary bonuses to be granted varies with the industry. For example, bank employees, who already get a month's paid vacation each year, under the new scheme will be paid 17 months salary for the 11 months they work.

The ordinary day laborer, paid by the hour, gets nothing extra under the new program. He remains Spain's forgotten man—feeding and clothing himself and family and told it's patriotic to have more and more children on 14 to 18 pesetas a day. That's between 35 and 45 cents a day.

He is so low on Spain's economic totem pole that he often works without shoes and his clothing is ragged and tattered.

He is able to get by only because every member of the family, including the small children, work at any job they can find. It is common for a man in this country, even a government employee, to hold two and even three jobs if he is fortunate enough to find that many.

It does the day laborer no good to protest at his pittance because there is plenty of unskilled labor available. Yet the supply of really skilled labor is so short that Spain must import technicians from other countries for her factories.

His utter poverty seems less shocking to Juan Lopez—Spain's common man—than it does to outside eyes because Juan has had this lot for centuries under every regime. He remembers with yearnings now the days of the monarch, which fell in 1931, because bread cost less then. And to him the price of bread is always more important than who runs the government.

Spain's newest Alice in Wonderland economic experiment, the monthly bonus barriers to further inflation, means as little to Juan Lopez as the outcome of the Kentucky Derby. All he feels sure of is that he will still be holding the bag.

Fish Story Cut Down To Size

EASTBOURNE, England, Nov. 3.—One fish story, about the man who flung a boat anchor into the sea and hooked a two-ton whale, has been cut down to size.

First, an expert from the British Museum came along and said the monster Vivian Gell and his friends dragged in wasn't a whale at all. It was a 14-foot basking shark. Then, before Gell could collect $28 that an animal dealer offered for the catch, hundreds of sightseers hacked the fish to pieces and carried it away for dog and cat food.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The most unforgotten man in Tuesday's election is President Truman. He campaigned hard for Gov. Adlai Stevenson, but he was also stumping for vindication of his administration and his place in history.

When Stevenson miffed him temporarily last August, Truman reminded him tartly that he, Truman, was the key to the campaign and that the Democrats would campaign on the record.

He was right. Stevenson and the Democrats did, more or less. And the Republicans made the record of the Truman administration the main issue in the campaign.

The campaign already had taken an impressive drop from its original high plane when Truman, a touchy, aggressive man with a lot of pride and a low boiling point jumped in. He turned it into a free-for-all.

Like others, he has been criticized for his tactics. Because so many people are involved, perhaps 55 million voters, this question never can be answered with certainty: Did Truman win or lose votes for Stevenson?

TRUMAN HIMSELF made it clear over the weekend he believes his efforts to help Stevenson not only were welcome but will continue to be. He said: "When Adlai Stevenson is elected President, I'm going to try to do all I can to help him."

Since Truman is well-read in the careers of American Presidents and their place in history, he has had to think of his own. Nevertheless, Tuesday's results will not necessarily fix his place. It may take generations to do that.

That's because of the long-range nature of the steps taken under his administration to stop Communism: Aid to Greece and Turkey, the Marshall Plan, the Atlantic pact, arms for Europe, Point Four Program, sending American troops to Korea.

The answer can't be known until the struggle with Communism is decided and even then it will be complicated by what Truman's successors in the White House do to continue, change or abandon the foreign policies laid down by him. Truman stayed in the background through August (when Stevenson and Gen. Eisenhower were preparing for the campaign) and through September, the first month of active campaigning.

When Eisenhower's own friends told him early in September he wasn't being tough enough, that he was running like a dry creek, the general changed his tactics to a slam-bang attack.

EVERYWHERE he talked about "crooks" in Washington, about little men too big for their britches. He poured ridicule and contempt on the administration and its handling of the Korean war.

This treatment from Eisenhower, for whom he had expressed high regard, had the effect of boiling oil on Truman.

Maybe nothing Eisenhower said, or left unsaid, would have altered Truman's tactics when he himself took to the road in October. He may look upon a campaign simply as open season.

At any rate Truman went after Eisenhower with a club. Eisenhower got probably the worst roughing-up of his life, for Stevenson's tone toward the general hardened, too. Eisenhower retaliated with harshness of his own.

Studies Of Antibiotics Show Benefits To The Farmer

Tests On Pigs And Plants Are Detailed

Runt Pigs Perk Up When Fed With Fortified Milk

Many and varied antibiotic studies which promise so much for the future are being closely watched by farmers.

Seven special articles on plant and animal disease and growth tests have been prepared, four concerning antibiotic tests for pig growth, another about apparent success against animal disease, a sixth concerns tests with plant sprays and the seventh reports trials to speed corn growth.

Here is a brief roundup of the articles.

1. Aureomycin still is tops for rushing pigs to market. Purdue compared two surfactants (surface acting agents) with it, and both lagged. Ethomoid C-15 produced no better gains than the basal ration when it was fed to 35-pound pigs in a 7-day test.

The second surfactant, alkyl benzene sulfonate, pushed gains up slightly, but results failed to match those obtained from aureomycin. In an earlier test, when pigs were carried to market weight, aureomycin was much better than alkyl benzene sulfonate.

2. TWO scientists, trying for a practical way to get aureomycin into pigs the first eight weeks, developed a sow-milk replacer that made 50-pounders at 56 days. The scientists are improving the ration and believe it "can put pigs on their own at a week old and make them gain faster than on the sow."

3. An Ohio hog man tried a sow-milk replacer of manufactured milk fortified with terramycin on some hopeless looking runt pigs. The milk made them pop. In a week they had good appetites. Cost of gain was less than 13 cents a pound.

4. "Purdue scientists believe there may be a little benefit from feeding aureomycin to brood sows. But you have to use 20 grams to a ton of feed. That's two or three times usual rate."

5. Bicillin, a penicillin product which lasts longer than other forms when injected into muscle tissue, can be used to fight shipping fever, pneumonia, erysipelas, leptospirosis and other animal ailments.

This Newspaper Is Planning Detailed Election Coverage

This newspaper will bring its readers detailed and nationwide election returns on Tuesday's balloting.

A special "extra" edition will come off the presses early Wednesday morning to provide first returns of local, state and national contests. The regular Wednesday afternoon edition is expected to contain virtually all final results.

The local news staff will concentrate on contests within this county. State and national results will pour into the news department from Galvin Wire Service on private long distance telephone cables.

Behind the national coverage will be the Associated Press and its army of 65,000 seasoned newsmen who will record the vote from 144,000 polling places.

Special tabulating machines will compute up-to-the minute totals with accuracy and speed. Veteran reporters and political writers will report and interpret the vote which will be transmitted over 400,000 miles of the AP's leased wires.

Thus, quicker than ever, this newspaper will tell whether Adlai E. Stevenson or Dwight D. Eisenhower will be the next President.

It will report also the outcome of races for 30 governorships, 35 U. S. senators and 435 congressmen and of every contest of state importance.

Comprehensive reports will be made and local voters will know the results as soon as the candidates themselves.

Specialists say three antibiotics—helixin, toximycin and antimycin—have produced promising results in tests against early blight in tomato plants. Toximycin in weak concentrations seems to stimulate root growth on tomato cuttings.

7. One scientist who said he doesn't yet know how much his findings may mean to farmers, has found that terramycin pushes plants as well as animals and penicillin may produce earlier Spring vegetables.

Diamine penicillin increased radish growth 85 percent, procaine penicillin 153 percent. A terramycin solution produced better germination and faster growth in corn. Streptomycin, bacitracin and thiolin also showed value as plant growth promoters.

Earlier articles told of the value of actidione, streptomycin, chloromycetin, penicillin, bacitracin, neomycin, dihydrostreptomycin and subtilin as controls for rust, smut and other plant diseases.

This year's election coverage will follow one of the costliest and most dramatic campaigns in American political history. The interest of voters is reflected in a nationwide registration estimated at a record-breaking 74,810,561. As a result state officials and other qualified sources predicted a Tuesday vote that would break all previous election records.

They Can't Vote In Capital City

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 — Tuesday is election day all over the United States, except in Washington, D. C. Here it's just Nov. 4, the day of decision for other people. Not a polling booth will be open, since Washington's 802,179 citizens aren't allowed to vote. The city has three commissioners named by the President who act as mayor; its city council is Congress.

An attempt will be made tomorrow to dramatize this lack of democracy in the capital of the world's largest democracy.

'Epigram Man' Dies At Age 76

WARREN, Nov. 3 — Funeral services will be held in nearby Cortland Wednesday for Henry A. Diehl, 76, who made hundreds of school assembly talks throughout Ohio and was known as "the epigram man."

The former school teacher died in a hospital here Saturday night.

Exam Papers Lost; Professor Fined

ROME, Nov. 3 — The loss of a set of school examination papers that resulted in the postponement of pupils' tests throughout all Italy cost Prof. Attilio Levi $6,410.

A court fined the professor that sum Friday in connection with the disappearance in July, 1948, of the master copy of composition examinations to be given all students in state schools. Levi maintained the documents were stolen.

Annual To Sport 'Talking' Section

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3 — Ohio State University's yearbook, "Makio," will have a new gimmick this year—a talking section.

A 15-minute 45-rpm phonograph record will be included in each copy of the 650-page annual. The record will reproduce familiar campus sounds — the marching band, Orton Hall chimes, homecoming festivities, glee club songs, pep rallies and the like.

'I Like Mike' Campaign Urged

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 3 — Greek Ambassador Alexis Kyrrou laughingly suggested Friday night that Secretary-General Trygve Lie furnish "I Like Mike" buttons for UN delegates to wear on election day.

Mike is the nickname of Canada's foreign secretary, Lester B. Pearson, president of the UN General Assembly.

Anti-Gambling Law Said Flop In First Year

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 — The law that was to force most gamblers to pay heavy taxes or put them out of business has done neither in its first year.

Frank Lohn, chief of the Internal Revenue Bureau's intelligence division, summing up a year's administration of the law, said it has brought in only a fraction of the expected revenue, and has not materially reduced gambling.

The government collected probably less than $9 million in taxes, compared with congressional estimates the take might be $400 million.

And, Lohn said, instead of being forced out of business, gamblers "have just gone underground." However, he added the law is a "deterrent to the gambling fraternity."

Immediately after it went into effect he said there was a large scale suspension of activity along with a dive underground. He said: "We know of places where gambling is still slowed up."

Why hasn't the law worked? For one reason, the bureau hasn't enough men to enforce it, he said. Congress provided no extra money for additional personnel, and the bureau could spare only 100 men to tap the gambling world for taxes.

Also, the Supreme Court has not yet ruled on whether the stamp tax is constitutional. Last spring a federal judge held it was not. Revenue officials say many gamblers believe the high court will overturn the law, and in the meantime they are not too afraid of violating it.
